COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course is for personnel responsible for initial or follow-up interviews in any type of investigation. Many prior BATI students are using this course as a refresher. Students will learn a new methodology of securing proper statements from involved subjects, which will assist in successful case resolution. If your interviews are in-person or over-the-phone, this training is for you! The course incorporates new concepts of information retrieval that are conducted in an effective, legal and ethical matter.

Topics Discussed:

- Developing Rapport Quickly
- Securing an Uncontaminated Statement
- Conducting a Proper Follow-Up Interview
- Detecting Deception through Physical & Verbal Behaviors

The words people use are exceptionally important. They reveal true feelings and relationships between the speaker and other people or things within their statement. Knowing how to decipher a person's linguistic code gives the interviewer a tactical advantage. Some say it is the best way to detect deception which is helpful in the interview room or in the field for officer safety.
